

Agloco Viewbar (unreleased version) Installed in Windows XP

17th May 2007

Agloco Viewbar Download Update

Akshay Mavani (official from Agloco) has sent an unreleased version (not available to download) of Viewbar to John Chow. John Chow installed the viewbar in his Windows OS and made a short video showing the viewbar in action. You can view the video below.

Summary of the video:

- Installation needs 5mb of space (1.8mb before installation)
- Slightly smaller than Windows task bar and able to dock on the bottom or top of the screen.
- Starts with a login screen which allow multiple logins
- Options to choose different languages
- Able to change colour of the Viewbar (green, blue, purple, red)
- Able to set default search engine of the Viewbar search field (i.e Google, Yahoo, eBay, Wikiedia etc)
- Options to update the Viewbar manually or automatically
- Setting proxy servers setting
- Minimize the Viewbar to right of taskbar
- Space in the middle of Viewbar that display ads
- Quick links to Windows calculator, calendar, bookmarks (FireFox & Internet Explorer)

Currently Agloco is still integrating the Viewbar with its ads server, which should be done within these few weeks. You will be informed via email when its available for download. In the meant time, introduce Agloco to your friends. You will have a higher success rate before its launched.

Direct Link To Video:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=i7grlIcDiBA>